From age 12, Gina has been fascinated by how businesses work and the people that make them work well. Gina skipped the playground and chose to spend her time in the boardrooms whenever possible. By 28, she took her seat in a Fortune 500 company as the Director of Supply Chain Operations. Due to early success as a strong individual contributor, Gina had to learn by trial and error how to lead and influence others to get work done.

Gina finally had a breakthrough in her ability to lead others when she focused on her own personal growth. With these newfound powers, Gina flexed her entrepreneurial skills to create an outsourced COO services company. As a COO for small to medium size businesses, she flexed into the healthcare, finance, and legal industries who had strong visionaries but needed help growing people. She offers tactical leadership training to those who desire to cultivate the highest and best performance in their team members.

Gina grew up in Nashville, Tennessee. She holds a B.S. in Psychology and Business from Vanderbilt University, an M.B.A. from Belmont University, and a Black Belt in Lean Six Sigma. Gina is also a published author of the award-winning leadership book, People Leadership: 30 Strategies to ensure your team's success.

Gina is clear her Divine Purpose is to cultivate growth in herself and others. As a self-described big kid at heart, Gina loves all things Disney, family (especially her 3 nieces), and exotic travel.
